Unknown to many students, Mr. Bradford is assistant principal of Scott Evening School. He assists one student in planning his courses in the adult education program.

To James A. Bradford

James Bradford is an artistic teacher, a man of methods. He combines an excellent knowledge of his field and a friendly, jovial attitude to produce an ideal atmosphere for learning and training.

In a sense there are two Mr. Bradfords — Mr. Bradford, the man and Mr. Bradford, the legend. No student is indifferent to Mr. Bradford and his teaching methods. Scotters entering his classes for the first time in September come with complete knowledge of his formidable store of frightening rules and regulations; they are awed by his presence. They leave in June, well trained and disciplined, realizing full well the power and impact of his individualistic personality.

In his other duties, science department chairman, assistant principal of Scott Evening School, and Alchemist Society adviser, Mr. Bradford displays the same exacting character developed through his extensive teaching experience. Yet under this seemingly stern exterior is a kind, sincere man, always willing to help, eager to teach and to learn.

"That could cost you five demerits, young man!" But these students are not frightened.

1650 Scotters + X

1650 Scotters + STUDENT SPIRIT = 1 Scott student body. School spirit has as many definitions as students. Spirit, more often than not, is thought of as large attendance at athletic contests, singing the Alma Mater after assemblies, and cheering in the cafeteria, and rightly so. Students accept these activities as a matter of course. Freshmen are gradually caught up in this net of spirit, accept in time its more obvious definition, and practice it with devoted acceptance or complete indifference. Seldom do they search for a deeper, fundamental meaning of spirit.

Student spirit is an awareness of and an enthusiasm for the purpose of the school and what it is attempting to do; it includes the support of athletic contests, the singing of the Alma Mater, and the cheering in the cafeteria. Individual pride, loyalty, service, and a sense of accomplishment evidence a personal spirit that is as valuable to the school community as mass support of school functions. Spirit fills the hearts and minds of Scotters bringing 1650 individuals into one student body.

Athletics Provides Common Unifying Force

Athletics has always been an effective influence for a sound student spirit at Scott. Our successful athletic teams have been in past years and continue to be a focal point around which much of our school spirit is centered. Spectators and players alike are drawn into the spirit of athletics which spreads rapidly throughout the school. The results of this spirit are tangible: a trophy, an award, a City-League championship. They are also intangible: pride, team loyalty, confidence.

The spirit in Scott's cheers and fight songs moves from the spectators in the stands to the players on the football field and the basketball court. The rhythmic cheer, "Let's go, Bulldogs," impels the drive and determination of a losing football team to bounce back after each setback with an intense fighting desire to win. It is fundamental in the success of a winning basketball team which needs student encouragement and backing as well as excellent coaching to keep on winning.

Ray Wolford rips through the Pep Club victory hoop.

Varsity football players "talk it up" in the huddle.

Scott students meet with Miss Kudzia and Mr. Langstaff to revise and amend the Student Representative Assembly constitution.

Spirit Promotes Friendship and Service

Spirit thrives in an atmosphere of friendship and service. The desire to succeed and to be recognized, as an individual or as a group, lays a strong foundation for the formation of an active and productive student spirit. The results are profitable to the individual, the school, and the community.

Through Scott's organizations students learn the meaning of friendship and harmony. By working toward a definite objective, they develop a sense of pride and personal accomplishment. They learn the purpose of spirit. By living and working together Scott High School students learn more than the knowledge from books. Their friendly, co-operative spirit developed now will hold them in good stead in the community.

Mr. Orton Ryan, Freshman Class adviser, thanks them for a job well done.

Scott Loyalty Song — a Symbol of Spirit

Come and join in songs of praise
To our happy high school days,
For the Scott we love always,
Dearest, best of all.

Hail, Our Alma Mater true!
Loyalty in us renew!
All that heart and hands can do,
Dear old Scott, we pledge to you.

Like the star gleams in the night,
Shine her colors maroon and white
Keep her honor pure and bright,
Till all time is done.

When through all the years to come,
Far away our steps may roam,
Memory will call us home,
To the Scott we love.

Hail our Alma Mater true!

Memory will call us home . . .

and Tradition

Philo C. Dunsmore

Mr. Philo C. Dunsmore, superintendent of Toledo Public Schools, is an educator with constructive ideas for expansion to meet the needs and inadequacies of the growing school system of Toledo. The rising school population urgently requires more classrooms and more teachers. With foresight and executive leadership, Superintendent Dunsmore directs a program of expansion and reconstruction to meet these needs and to benefit the young people of Toledo. Although Scotters seldom see him, they appreciate the results of his efforts to give Toledo the best school system possible.

Active Leaders Build the Means for Learning

Cheers of gratitude for the Scott PTA rose on Thanksgiving morning when the Scott Band marched forth, resplendent in their beautiful new uniforms; effort of the organization over a two-year period to raise funds for the band had made a fond dream come true. The services of these real Scott boosters were many. The information night series, the patron drive for the Music Festival in May, the annual Scott Skits party, transportation facilities for the scholarship contestants traveling to Bowling Green, the Honor Society luncheon, and the reception following the Senior Baccalaureate Service highlighted the fine work of the PTA throughout the year. The presentation of a PTA scholarship at Commencement was the concluding event for this active organization.

These helpful projects were completed under the leadership of Mrs. Franklin Shore, president; Mrs. Walter Hoover, first vice-president; Miss Wilma Kudzia, second vice-president; Mrs. Twyman Traynum, secretary; Mrs. Orland Howell, treasurer.

Mrs. Twyman Traynum, Mrs. Franklin Shore, and Mr. Klein admire Bill Leutz's new band uniform.

Our Principal Instills Desire to Learn

Mr. R. J. Langstaff, the soft-spoken principal of Scott High School, bases his guidance of Scotters upon well-studied, sincere convictions and beliefs. By reminding his students of their purpose at Scott and the importance of their personal relationships with fellow students, he inspires them to build a better school and higher goals for living. His words to students are simple and direct, yet they express profound ideas, creating at Scott an atmosphere of learning and comradeship which Mr. Langstaff inspires by his leadership.

Genie Rosebrock presents a birthday cake to Mr. Langstaff on behalf of the student body.

Counselors Impart Guidance

Mr. Alberstett and Miss Petersen discuss study plans with Elaine Hallem.

Miss Florence Petersen, assistant principal, counselor of girls, and Mr. Vernon Alberstett, assistant principal, counselor of boys, direct an efficient and successful guidance program for Scotters. The more comprehensive guidance program inaugurated this year to meet the increasing needs of the 1661 students enrolled at Scott necessitated the addition of two new counselors, Mrs. Kathleen Conwell and Mr. Robert Carson, who ably assist in the program.

By the administration of aptitude tests and counseling of students in study planning, this corps of advisers is enabled to give Scotters a rounded educational program which will best benefit them in vocational choice and preparation. The friendly, personal basis upon which they depend their guidance affords students a purpose for education.

SEATED: Miss Florence Petersen, Mrs. Kathleen Conwell. STANDING: Mr. Vernon Alberstett, Mr. Robert Carson.

Program Designers

Promote Learning

Miss Vera Baymiller, assistant principal of instruction, guides the program of instruction for the school. Her supervisory duties include the direction of visual education and administration of testing to evaluate scholastic achievement. Her study of curriculum problems, teaching methods and aids, and textbook materials provides for effective learning experiences in education. In addition to her day-time activities, Miss Baymiller is the principal of evening school.

The program of extra-curricular events of the school calendar is directed by Miss Wilma Kudzia, assistant principal, director of activities. As adviser of the Student Assembly, the Inter-Club Council, and the Senior Class, she works closely with student leaders. As College Counselor, she assists students to obtain knowledge about college and entrance requirements and to select a college wisely. She is also acting chairman of the Orientation Department and adviser of the Scott chapter of the National Honor Society.

Language Widens Roads to Understanding

All life may not be literature, but the fact that literature is life lures enthusiastic readers into the realm of books read in English classes. There, also, objectives of improving reading habits and perfecting through practice the skills in written and oral communication benefit the students who seek two magic keys to success — knowledge and effective expression.

If the art of fluency in modern language be the formula for peaceful living among the neighbors of the world, then the French and Spanish classes may be hailed the harbingers of peace. Here the embryo linguists study not only the language but also the culture and customs of the land whose language they pursue. Their colleagues in Latin classes study the language of antiquity to enrich vocabulary aptitude, explore the life of ancient Rome, and acquire a scholastic background for professional study.

Social Studies Bring World to Focus

History textbooks break the barriers of time and space for students as they delve into the culture of bygone eras and the complexities of modern governments. Scotters discover through sociology the ways people act within their environment and the forces that stimulate their actions. In economics classes they learn to apply the terms and theories of economics to the problems of everyday living.

Freshmen soon adjust to the daily routine at Scott with the help of the orientation department. Animated classroom discussions ranging from current events to teenage social problems reflect the interests and ideas of the freshmen. From studying floor plans of the building, rules and regulations, and Scott traditions, they quickly form an integral part of the Scott student body.

Science and Math Provide Keys to Space Age

The magic of mathematics opens a world of exactness and logic to the students learning algebraic expressions and geometry theorems. To others, their basic and applied mathematics classes offer useful knowledge essential to the arithmetic of daily living.

To curious Scotters in the biology classrooms and chemistry laboratories, examination and experimentation are the keys to scientific thinking and investigation. Here students of science attempt to understand the laws of nature and direct their knowledge of natural forces toward man's use and betterment.

Creative Arts Develop Special Skills

Though boys invade the kitchen of the third-hour cooking class, home economics is primarily a course to prepare girls for future homemaking. Here students learn the value of nutritional cooking and the fundamentals of sewing.

Jigsaws, sanders, and hammers are used to create useful objects of plastic, wood, and metal in the industrial arts workshops. By learning handiwork skills, students prepare themselves for employment after graduation.

Scott's music program provides rich entertainment for students at games and assemblies. Through the orchestra, band, and choral groups, students develop their talents and gain greater music appreciation.

In art classroom, students express themselves in drawing, painting, and design. Those interested in art careers study the fundamentals of fashion and commercial art.

Business and Health Are Practical Aims

From ninth grade elementary business training every average person should know to special training in bookkeeping, shorthand, and office machines extends the variety of courses offered in business education. Often jobs seek the Scott-trained business students long before they complete their senior year to fill positions in Toledo offices.

Since sports for recreation and worthy use of leisure are essential to the well-adjusted person, the physical education classes are very popular in the Scotter's program. Playing on the team affords him fun, while the carefully directed play helps him to develop alertness, strength, and muscular co-ordination.

Books for reference and pleasure are enjoyed through the facilities of the Scott library. The nurse's office is a place of comfort for students with ailments and injuries. Through the services of the librarian and nurse, Scotters safeguard their mental and physical health.

Unsung Heroes Serve Scott

The often unsung heroes who make Scotters comfortable and happy during the school day are staff members whose duties comprise cafeteria, engineering, and custodial services. Four-thirty on a cold winter morning is not too early for engineers to be at work heating the building. Likewise lighted rooms or halls at ten p.m. indicate that other members of the Scott family, the custodians, are readying a clean building for the next school day. Last, but not least, are the cafeteria workers, whose tasty foods send pleasant aromas floating down from fourth floor to welcome the early arrivals and tease them with thoughts of lunch. Although the students seldom see these members of the school staff, they are appreciatively conscious of their presence through their many services.

Mrs. Harding and Mrs. DeHan serve delicious food in the cafeteria.

Commencement Crowns Senior Achievements

Success in the future is the goal for the Senior Class of 1960. Their past achievements in school events have become stepping stones in life's challenging world. Seniors will remember the bewilderments of entering a strange school their freshman year and their uniting under a freshman council to organize their class activities.

As sophomores they were active in sports, clubs, and special school programs. In the spring they sponsored the Freshman-Sophomore Dance under the leadership of Gary Crawford, president; Marcia Lopate, secretary; and Ronald Bilchik, treasurer.

As members of an enthusiastic Junior Class, they participated in many testing programs and ranked high in athletic contests. With assistance from the class officers, Ronald Bilchik, president; Mike Swolsky, vice-president; Charlene Cummings, secretary; and Steve McLaughlin, treasurer, the juniors supported a class picnic and an enjoyable junior prom, "April Love."

The most decisive and most memorable year they found to be their senior year. The senior officers, Ronald Bilchik, president; Terry Jones, vice-president; Charlene Cummings, secretary; and Marvin Heller, treasurer, led the class in presenting the dramatic project, "Mr. Barry's Etchings." The beautiful senior prom, scholarship achievements, an inspiring commencement ceremony, and memories of their four years of high school gave real meaning to the words, "Memories will call us home, to the Scott we love."

"Yea, Scott!" yells Terry Jones and fellow seniors at a Senior Class meeting.

"Scott has a brilliant past, unlimited future."

Sharon Goldie

Sharon Goldie and Hoover Liddell leave the center of the field after the meeting of the contending captains.

The lights dimmed and heads turned as the annual Thanksgiving Day Assembly processional began in the State Theatre. Members of the court, Helen Eiland, Marcia Sautter, Genie Rosebrock, and Sandra Harris, gracefully ascended the stage. Next in line followed the queen's attendants, Betty Jean Smith and Sondra Shanabarger, preceding lovely Thanksgiving Day Queen Sharon Goldie.

Before the traditional Scott-Waite Thanksgiving Day game began, Sharon presented the football to the two opposing captains. Later that evening in the Scott fieldhouse she appeared with her attendants and court members amidst the romantic atmosphere of the Varsity Drag.

Members of the cast watch Jim Kieselhorst and Sue Foster rehearse a scene.

Laughter Has Lead in "Mr. Barry's Etchings"

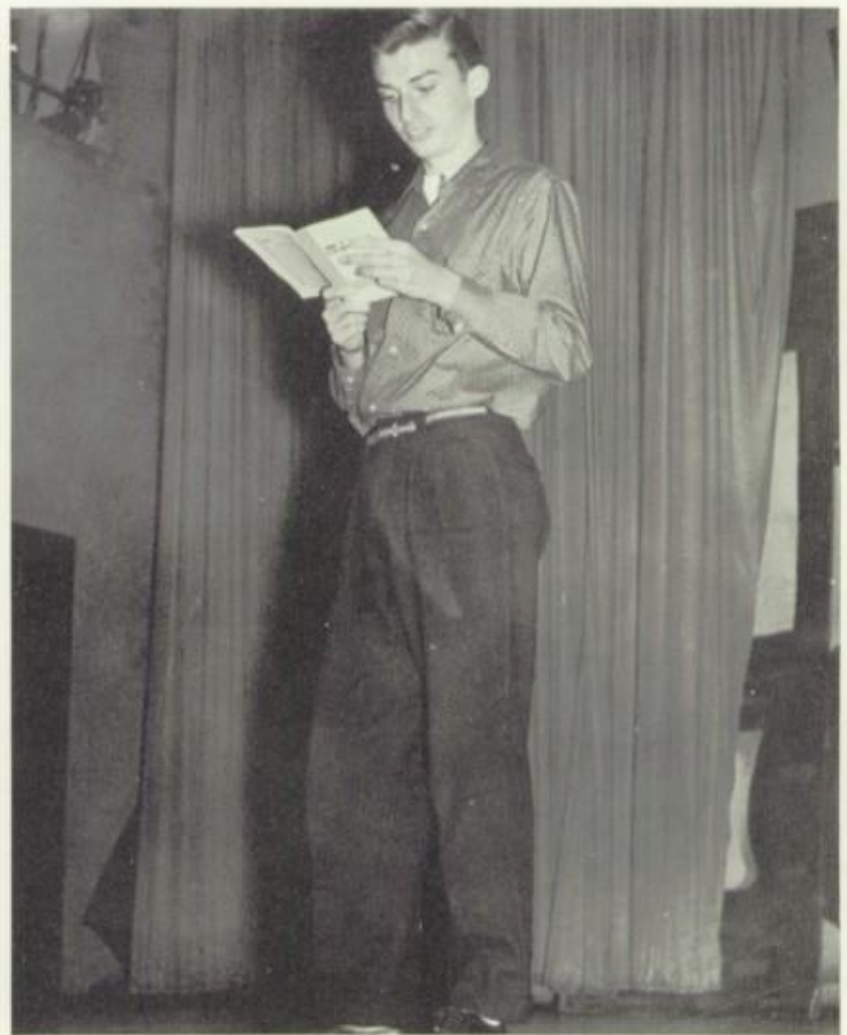

Claire Zaner introduces reporters Amy Boland and Bill Haas to mother, Mary Ottmann.

The Senior Class of 1960 presented "Mr. Barry's Etchings" November 21, 1959, in the Scott auditorium. The comedy, written by Daniel Archer and Walter Bullock, provided humorous entertainment for an appreciative audience. Mr. Barry's unusual hobby of "etching" fifty dollar bills led to his giving them away to friends in need of funds. Complications arose when criminals intervened and news of the counterfeit bills reached the press.

Under the capable direction of Mr. James Eppstein and the student directors, Sharon Goldie and Pete Lawless, the enthusiastic seniors worked hard for over a month designing and painting sets, making costumes, and setting up the lights. The Senior Class will long remember the fun and work in producing the play and the satisfaction of a job well done on the night the play was presented.

Walter Nuzum and James Levison model their senior play costumes.

Juniors Work for Unity

Scott Election Day produced an enthusiastic group of Junior Class officers with great plans for a successful year. A class mixer held in November at Scott Park Shelter House brought the juniors together for their first social event. In January a sale of Scott buttons helped to increase the Junior Class treasury and boost school spirit. The climax of their social year came when the juniors held their semi-formal Junior Prom in the Scott High School fieldhouse. Under the guidance of Miss Nancy Young the class of 1961 fulfilled the expectations of their activity program for the year.

Sophomores Leap into Activity

The spirited sophomore class, more familiar with Scott routine than they had been as freshmen, began their many activities early in the year. The enthusiastic officers and Sophomore Class Council, together with Miss Karen Fortune, adviser, were kept busy in conducting money-making, recreational, service, and community-relations projects. A bake sale featuring mouth-watering delicacies made by the talented sophomores, a dazzling Thanksgiving "Bulldog" float, and several school "sings" contributed to a well-rounded and active year for the class of 1962.

Freshmen Struggle for Recognition

The world of books is studied by freshmen in the library.

The bewildered look on the faces of the freshmen betrayed their outward airs of certainty as their first day at Scott High School began.

The largest and newest class at Scott began their year by becoming acquainted with the building, her people, her rules and regulations. Before the second semester, a Freshman Class Council was organized and, under the guidance of Mr. Orton Ryan, the ninth graders began making tentative plans for the rest of the year. By June, 1960, the bewildered expression of the freshmen changed to one of confidence in their successful orientation at Scott.

Varsity Is Hampered by Inexperience, Rugged Schedule

Coach Everett Dean and his assistants, Mr. Robert Carson and Mr. Richard Knisely, began practice in August to mold a young, inexperienced group of boys into an organized, hard-hitting, football team. Many Scott followers thought that they had done the nearly impossible when the Bulldogs defeated a highly-touted Woodward team 16-6 in the Old Newsboys' Premier. The next time the team could enjoy a victory came in November after the pigskin-carriers had suffered nine defeats.

Scott opened its regular season against a well-coached Findlay team. After giving the Trojans a 14-0 half-time lead, Scott battled back to tie the game 14-14. Findlay scored late in the fourth quarter to win 20-14.

In the next six weeks Scott played six of the first twelve teams in Ohio. The Green and White played well but lost 32-12 to Woodward. During the following three weeks they were routed by Sandusky, DeVilbiss, and Springfield. They played better football against Central and Alliance, but were again overpowered. In the words of the Springfield coach, Scott was the hardest-hitting team his undefeated squad played.

In the last home game of the 1959 season the Bulldogs met the Macomber Craftsmen. A heavy rain and the mucky Scott field severely hurt the Scott running attack. Mocomber passed for six points and the led held throughout the game.

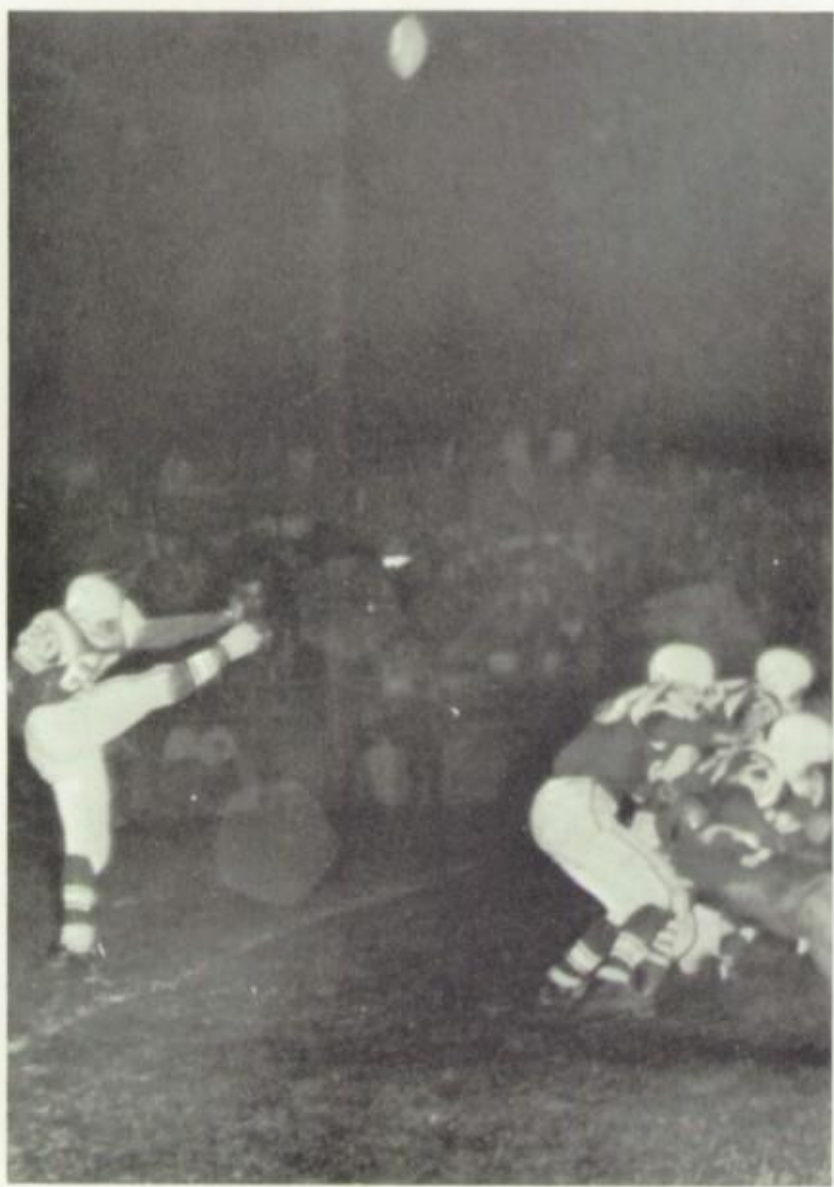

Although they found it difficult to hold student support, the varsity maintained a great fighting spirit throughout the season. Their determination and hard practicing finally paid off in the game with Fremont Ross. In their best success of the campaign, Scott edged the determined Little Giants 12-8. This proved to be their only game victory as they lost 8-0 to Waite in the Thanksgiving Day classic.

Bulldogs Bow to Indians in Turkey Tilt

The forty-sixth annual Thanksgiving Day game, played at Waite Stadium, proved to be another excellent game in this high school rivalry, one of the oldest in the nation.

Scott was unable to take advantage of two opportunities to score in the first half and lost 8-0. After moving the ball forty-nine yards to the Indian twenty-seven yard line, the Green and White were halted on four attempts and had to give up the ball. Four plays later Waite fumbled and Scott recovered on the twenty-seven. The Bulldogs were again unable to move and Waite took over on downs. Eight plays later their quarterback passed sixteen yards for a touchdown to climax the seventy-three yard drive.

Statistically, both teams were evenly matched with Waite leading in total rushing yardage and Scott ahead in passing.

Four players who did an outstanding job in this game were Howard Jennings, Mike Roman, Steve McGee, and Allen Smith.

Steve McGee goes for the loose pigskin.

Reserves Tally Late Season Victories

The 1959 lightweight football team started off slowly, but finished with a flourish by winning two of their last three games, to finish the season with a 2-4 record. What the team lacked in ability they made up in desire and spirit.

The individual play was satisfactory and with a little more experience the junior varsity could have won more games. Steve Cole, Ralph Bailey, Robert Johnson, and Melvin Barnett starred in the backfield while Willie Hughes, Jim Houston, Henry Matthews, and Ernie Gross were outstanding linemen.

Frosh Falter Against Stiff Opposition

The freshmen had a rocky start in City League competition as their football team suffered an 0-6 record. Since this was the first year of organized football for most of the boys, they made many costly mistakes, some of which meant the difference between winning and losing. In the game with DeVilbiss, Scott's failure to make the points after the touchdown cost them the game. Although many boys played very well at times, Kenny Williams, a back, and John McGee, a lineman, were consistent performers throughout the season.

"Naughty, naughty! Mustn't do!" Bob Ross is fouled by a Woodward player.

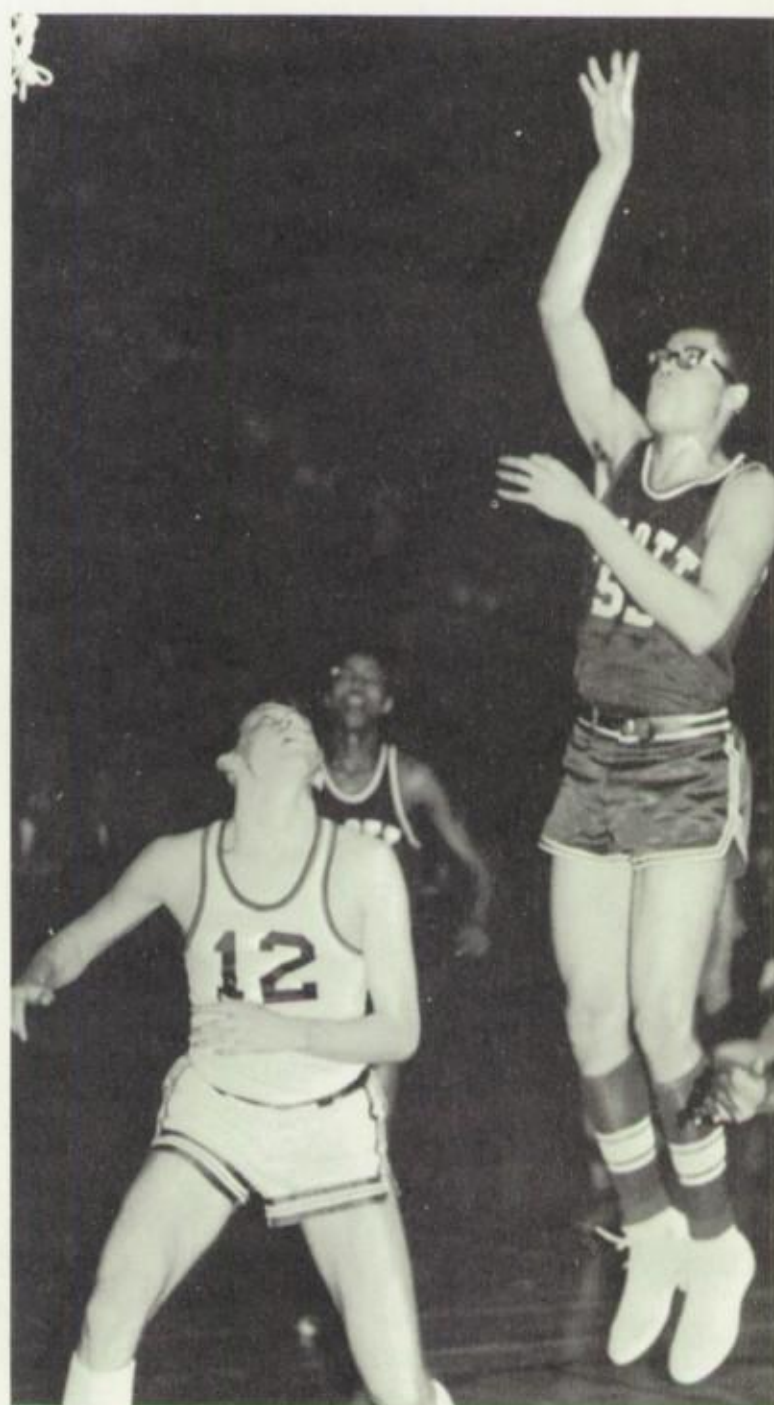

The 1960 Scott Varsity Basketball team added another fine record to its mounting basketball prestige in the State of Ohio. Their consistently fine performance under pressure and their experience enabled the Bulldogs to claim the City-League co-championship which they shared with a strong Woodward quintet. The team progressed easily through the first third of the season compiling a 6-0 record. Then the Bulldogs traveled to Napoleon for the four-team Napoleon Christmas Tournament. There the Red and White barely slipped past host Napoleon the first night and in the final game lost to a fast-breaking Fairview team.

After the holidays the Scott quintet returned to the rugged City League where they conquered six successive opponents, through winning by only very small margins in each game. In the next two contests the Bulldogs rolled easily over St. Francis and Central. Then on the evening of February 12, 3600 cheering fans packed the Waite fieldhouse to watch the battle for the City-League lead between Scott and Woodward. In the early stages of the game the Polar Bears built up a sizable lead, only to have the tenacious Bulldogs whittle away at the margin and finally take command during the fourth quarter with a twelve-point lead. The revitalized Northenders came to life to knot the score 74-74 at the final buzzer. The Bulldogs fought spiritedly during the three-minute overtime period, but Ray Wolford's fouling out spelled doom for the Scotters which even the loud pulsating cheer of "Let's go, Bulldogs" could not overwhelm. When the overtime had ended, the Polar Bears were victorious 83-78, despite the record breaking 47-point performance by Ray Wolford and excellent team play.

In the final game of the season the Scotters faced a very determined, tall Devilbiss team. Down eight points at the outset of the fourth quarter, the Bulldogs battled back to edge the Tigers by one point. This final triumph gave Scott an 11-1 City League record, and a 16-2 overall mark which entitled the Bulldogs to seventh place in the final Associated Press state basketball poll.

Bulldogs Capture Region Trophy

"It's mine," says Steve McGee. Ray Wolford and Bob Ross seem to agree.

Scott began its climb to the State tournament by ousting a determined but outclassed Central five. In their second Sectional game, the Red and White met Rogers and won in the closing seconds as a desperate fourth quarter drive by the Rams failed.

Scott drew Van Wert in the first game of the District. The shorter, less experienced Cougars proved to be no match for the powerful Bulldogs and Coach Kandik substituted freely in the second half. In the District finals, Scott fell behind Libbey early in the game but recovered to build a nine point lead at halftime. A Libbey rally fell short, and the Cowboys were defeated by three points.

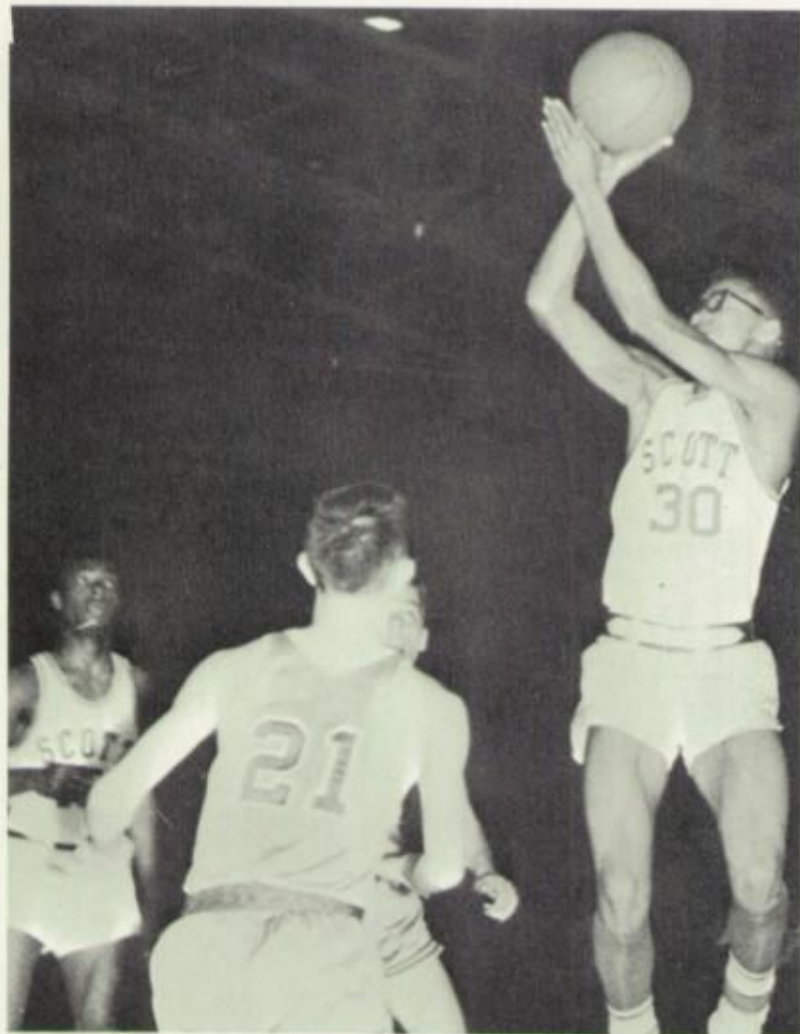

In the Regional semifinal, the Eastwood Eagles put on a fine display of outside shooting that was a constant threat to the Bulldogs' lead. The following night in their best team effort of the year, Scott trounced Elyria 63-41. Led by All-State Ray Wolford, the Bulldogs built up an early lead and never were in trouble as they assured themselves of a trip to Columbus for the second straight year.

Coach Kandik drew top-ranked Dayton Roosevelt in the semifinals of the State tournament. Any fears of a rout by the Teddies were quickly dispelled as the Red and White jumped to a slim first quarter lead which they held until midway in the fourth quarter. After regaining the lead, Roosevelt, who went on to win the State Championship, "froze" the ball for a four point win.

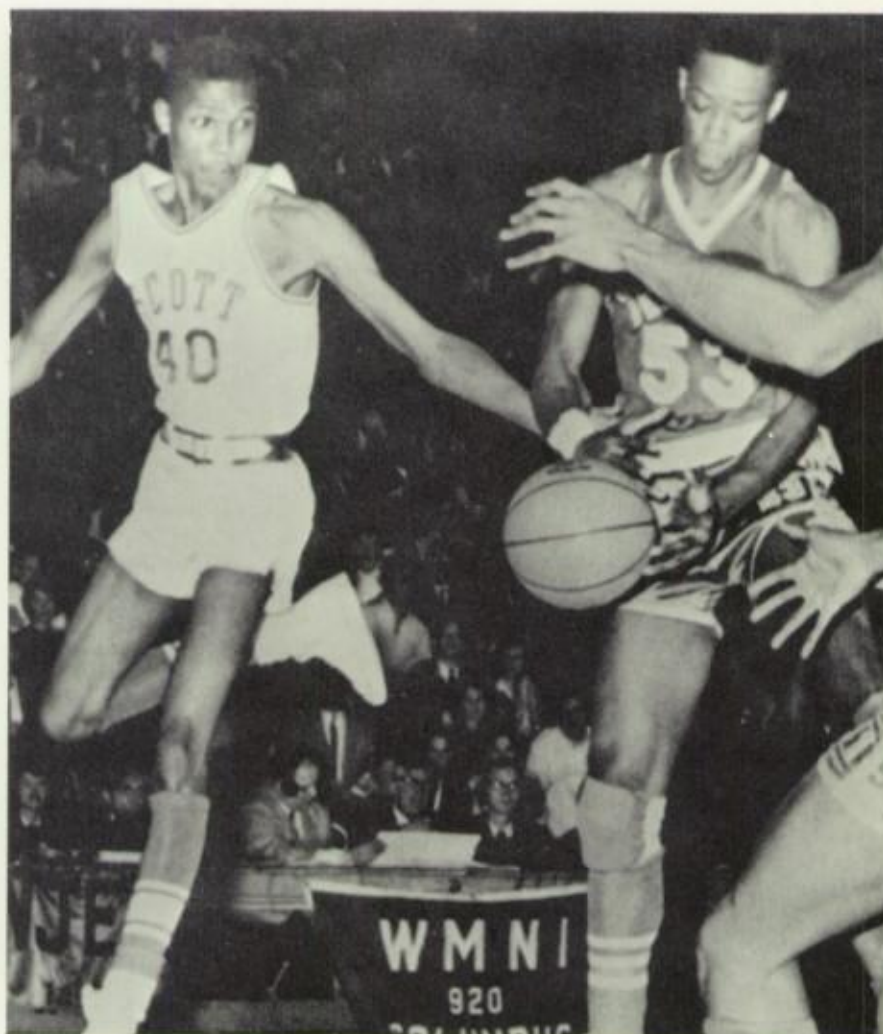

Scott's enthusiastic followers can well be proud of the team's successful tournament record.

Reserves Reverse Early Season Defeats

After a slow start, the basketball lightweights improved greatly and managed to finish the season in fifth place in the City League with a 7-9 record. One of the main reasons for this improvement lay in the attitude of the boys. First year coach, John Poth, reported that no one player was absent from practice during the season. Another factor was the fine student support. Three players who were especially impressive were Jasper Wiggins, who was elevated to the varsity later in the season; Celester Barnes, who pulled down 146 rebounds; and Nick Nicolaides, who turned in an impressive job in setting up plays and directing the team on the court.

The flashy frosh basketball team compiled a 9-4 won-lost record, good enough for second place among the yearlings in the City League. According to Coach Knisely, the pups emerged from inexperience to become one of the most powerful scoring teams he has ever coached. They showed promise of upholding Scott's excellent basketball tradition.

The Bulldogs dropped games to Woodward, Central, Macomber, and Devilbiss, losing three starts by a total of only six points. The squad was led by Richard Jackson, who amassed 100 points with a forty-seven per cent average from the floor. He was followed by Gus Nicolaidis, Theron Pride, Earl Barry, and Gary PointDexter.

Harriers Suffer Rugged First Season

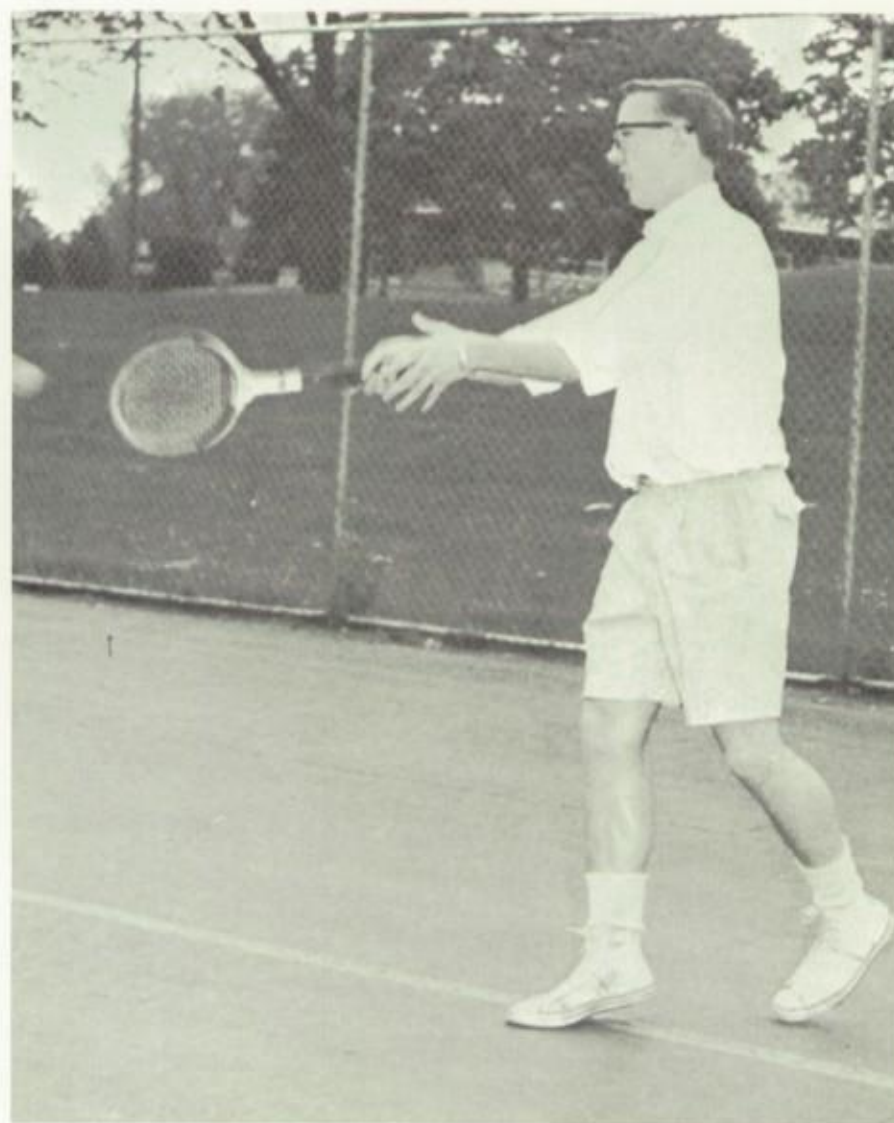

Scott runners break into an early lead.

After an absence of seven years, cross country returned to Scott in the fall of 1959 as a varsity sport. The harriers ran over a two mile course at Ottawa Park. In a dual meet, each team entered seven men, with the top ten counting in the final score. Unlike most sports, the team with the lower score is the winner of the meet.

The team, coached by Mr. Orton Ryan, tallied a disappointing record, but gained invaluable experience. In George Cook, John Simmons, and Larry Nesbitt, Scott had three excellent distance runners. As a team, however, Scott was unable to capture a meet and finished the season with a 0-6 record.

Coached by Miss Geraldine Leitner, the 1959 tennis team had another very successful season. Their record of four wins and two losses was good enough for second place in the City League. In outside matches the netmen defeated St. Francis 3—2 and lost to Fremont Ross 4—3. On May 22, Marvin Odesky and Ronald Bilchik became the first Scott representatives in many years at the state tournament at Columbus. Unfortunately both lost their first matches. The junior lettermen included Ronald Bilchik, Gary Crawford, and Steve McLaughlin.

Diamondmen Falter After Fast Start

The 1959 Scott baseball team, guided by George Machoukas in his first year as coach, started off impressively by winning its first three league games. Then, because of inexperience, weak hitting, and lack of pitching depth, they ran into much difficulty and lost four straight ball games. In their second encounter with Macomber, the team scored a decisive win, but they lost the remaining games, ending the season with a 4-8 City League record and a 4-11 overall mark. The junior lettermen included Dave Amborski and Jim Alexander, pitchers; Stan Harmon, 1b; Howard Jennings, ss; Andy Kujda, 2b; and Mike Swolsky, rf.

Although they tried hard, Mr. Lake's golf team had a very disappointing 1959 season. Their record of one win and six losses placed them seventh in the league. Because there was only one returning letterman from the 1958 squad, lack of experience was the chief reason for the poor showing. The letter winners included Larry Schwartz, James Levison, Sherman Keller, John Holland, Mickey Rosenberg, and Emil Marks. Larry Schwartz was selected to receive the Most Valuable Player Award.

Wrestlers Gain Respect

Dave Bethany forces his opponent to the mat.

Wrestling, although only in its second year at Scott, produced considerable interest and the hope that this exciting sport will soon receive equal prominence with the other sports.

The grapplers managed only one victory during the season. That was a lopsided 48-10 win over an equally inexperienced Rossford High team. The individual ability of some of the wrestlers was evident during the district tournament held at Waite in February when they finished third of the City-League schools. Sam Price, Arthur Martin, and Dave Bethany all reached the semi-finals. Dave Bethany put on a fine display of wrestling skill in losing to defending state heavy-weight champion, Merle Solowin. Most of the boys were underclassmen and with a year or two of experience should prove quite capable of winning more than their share of matches.

Although the American League keglers did not complete as good a record as that of their National League brethren, they managed to take eighth place in their conference. Dale Courtney and Gary Seyfang led the team with 154 averages. Other good bowlers were James Alexander and James Levison who completed the season with averages of 153 and 149 respectively.

Honor Society Promotes Scholarship

Throughout the year the Scott Chapter of the National Honor Society encouraged and promoted the ideals, scholarships, leadership, character, and service. The Society maintained the Honor Roll on the second floor during each quarter for all students who received grades of "A" and "B." They sent letters of recognition to all freshmen who earned all A's and B's for the first quarter. Twelve juniors and twelve seniors were elected to the Scott Chapter of the National Honor Society in April, 1959. At an impressive ceremony these juniors and seniors were inducted into the Society. It was they who maintained the service of the Honor Society during the school year.

Meditations Inspire Student Thought

In January the Meditation Committee began its eighth year of service to the Scott student body, dedicated to the purpose of stimulating thought through meditations prepared and delivered by members over the public address system at the beginning of each school day. At semi-monthly meetings members evaluated ideas and sought inspiration for meditations that would have student appeal. Each member was responsible for writing original meditations for a week; then he practiced delivery before school. On the return to school after the Christmas recess, the committee gave its eighth annual assembly for students, presenting a guest speaker and the Scott Symphonic Choir.

The members discussed these contributions, and Mr. Eppstein, the adviser, and the club members applied constructive criticisms.

Among the successful activities the group enjoyed during the year were a bakesale and an open meeting at which the members gave informal readings of their own literary attempts. All poems, essays, and short stories were bound into the club scrapbook and presented at the club fair.

Loquacians Improve Speech Techniques

The Loquacians helped members to gain confidence in public speaking by varied experiences. They tape-recorded their voices to discover their needs in improving enunciation. At meetings they produced radio skits and conducted panel discussions to illustrate erroneous speech habits and then made necessary corrections. Members were better able to understand their own faults and weaknesses.

To dramatize correct posture for speaking, the Dramatics Club gave entertaining skits to instruct the group. Thus by exercises for practicing breath control and correct posture, the members acquired habits to make themselves more effective speakers.

Dramatics Club Performs for Others

The members of the 1959-1960 Dramatics Club had a busy year developing their acting skills by performing skits and pantomimes at their own meetings, at meetings of the Loquacians, and at assemblies. The members attempted spontaneous pantomimes for the entertainment of the club. Their activities included a demonstration of the application of make-up and a journey to the Repertoire Little Theater to watch a dress rehearsal. One of the highlights of the year was an evening program given by Mr. S. E. Malley, veteran Broadway writer and character actor, who gave the members many interesting ideas about the Broadway theater.

Art Club Captures Spring Landscape in Watercolor

The members of the Art Club, interested solely in creative art, applied the art fundamentals which they learned last year to individual projects. They applied the knowledge acquired through field trips and from guest speakers to subjects in classical oil painting. Many students, under the supervision of Adviser John Wheeler and experienced members, were introduced to this medium of expression for the first time.

In April and May, the Art Club members traveled to the out-of-doors to capture in water color the bright spring landscape of Scott campus.

Spanish Club Studies Culture

The members of the 1959-1960 Spanish Club conducted a program which enabled them to study the colorful Spanish culture and customs of North and South America. The semi-monthly classroom meetings included discussion of Spanish, history, and current events.

The club celebrated Christmas with a "fiesta de Navidad." The members played Spanish games and enjoyed Spanish treats. Many of the members own Spanish art and stamp collections. Others correspond with students in Toledo, Spain.

French Club Learns Through Speaking

The French Club had a well-defined purpose, to speak French more fluently and through study of the history and the culture of France to know her people better. The club, composed of second-year French students, held meetings during the fifth hour class period. By conducting discussions in French on current subjects, members practiced speaking fluently in the language. At one meeting Mrs. Josette Weech, a Scott mathematics teacher who has recently moved from France to America, spoke to the group about the French school system.

Future Nurses Visit Flower Hospital

Through the program of activities planned for the year, the Future Nurses Club aimed to acquire knowledge and understanding of the preparation required for the nursing career. Eva Holly, past president of the club in 1959, spoke at one of the meetings about her experiences at Maumee Valley Hospital School of Nursing. To become acquainted with hospital environment and hospital nursing the nurses visited Flower Hospital. This visit inspired them to make tray favors for Flower Hospital patients at Christmas time.

Future Teachers Aid Faculty Members

"We aim to serve" is the motto of the Future Teachers of America. The club began its year with the student assistant program, in which members assisted Scott teachers by scoring papers and recording grades. Members gained valuable teaching experience by conducting classes of F.T.A. members in a classroom technique project. Miss Mary Boyd, a teacher at Fulton School, gave members through her talk a view of teaching. The installation ceremony of new officers completed a successful year for the Future Teachers.

Future Homemakers Prepare for Careers in Homemaking

The Future Homemakers of America started their year with the annual doughnut and cider sale, October 21. The club held the initiation of new members on November 24, 1959, at the First Unitarian Church. From the national headquarters, the group received information about opportunities in the field of home economics. Many of the activities of the Scott chapter of F.H.A. followed the national program of work, such as the Fall Rally and subregional meeting.

Excitement is in the air as the first plans for the 1960 "Scott Skits" were made by Mrs. Conwell and "Skits" performers.

"Skits" Talent Recreates

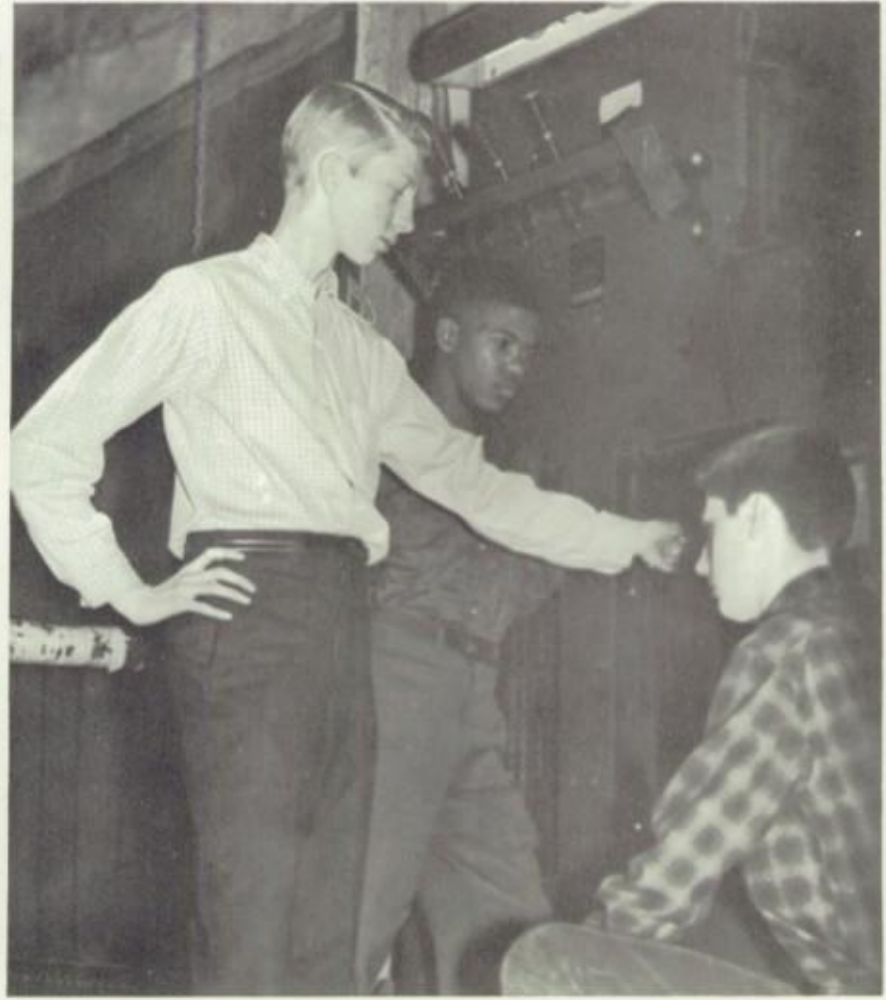

Sandy Harris and Amy Boland tramp along in style of the 1920's at "Skits" try-outs.

Dick Brundage and Dale Williams learn from Dave Lyons how the lights should work for "Skits."

Rollicking 1900's in Song and Dance

The scheduled day of tryouts for the "Scott Skits" moved all contenders for parts to great excitement. As each awaited the call to present his act, his thoughts turned to hopeful anticipation of the judges' decision. After the evaluation of acts was completed, the cast was announced and preparation for the 1960 P.T.A. — sponsored "Skits" got underway. Committees were chosen and each began its assigned task. Finally came opening night, March 24, in the Scott High auditorium; the house lights dimmed, the curtains parted, and Mrs. Conwell, Mr. Eppstein, Mr. Simon, Genie Rosebrock, and Steve Jepson, student directors, watched their talent review blend rhythm and harmony into artistic entertainment. The audience was transported back to 1900, and then were off on an entertaining journey which reflected through song and dance the spirit of the six successive decades.

Mr. Eppstein discusses technical problems in production with student directors Genie Rosebrock and Steve Jepson at the first cast meeting.

Roselyn Zanville, Joe Marconi, Ernie Jones, and Lynne Feldman kneel on the job to paint scenery for the "Skits."

Bob Brundage, Dennis Forsythe, and John Loo of the sound crew make minor readjustments with the phonograph.

Georgia Millos and Sandy Rahn decide that the hem of Sue Foster's dress will have to be raised.

Mr. Simon directs the quintet, including Jodie Coogler, Steve Jepson, and Larry Zientek, as Terry Jones sings "Matilda" during rehearsal.

Genie Rosebrock and her sister Betty perform a new dance routine on opening night.

Gloria Henry and Charles Huston entertain the audience with a zany Charleston.

The revised Student Representative Assembly Constitution, inaugurated in the spring of 1959, was fully employed for the student government during this school year. Under this plan, members, who included homeroom representatives, class presidents, and representatives of special classes, met every Tuesday at 8:20 A.M. to discuss and plan student problems and activities. During the homeroom period on Wednesday, President Hoover Liddell delivered by public address system to the student body the minutes of the meeting. A homeroom discussion period followed in which representatives might discover the reaction of the general student body and draw out valuable suggestions. With the help of Miss Kudzia, the adviser, the Scott student government proceeded efficiently.

The Scott Commissions Assist Students

The Scott commissions, functioning under the Scott Student Representative Assembly, performed many services for Scotters during the year. Four of the five commissions under the direction of Miss Kudzia were the following: Organizations Commission regulated activities of the thirty clubs and school organizations; Finance Commission kept the records of all the clubs and the four organized classes and sold savings stamps and bonds every Thursday morning; Social Commission planned all the formal and informal social functions of the school year except the class dances; Assembly Commission produced many memorable pre-game athletic assemblies and gave assistance in the technical presentation of all school assemblies. The fifth commission, the Publicity Commission under the direction of Mrs. Conwell, displayed in the Scott halls many interesting and informative bulletin boards and streamers.

Marching Musicians Execute Intricate Maneuvers

Co-operation, service, precision and rhythm were primary in the success of the Scott High School Marching Band. Having spent two hard-working years campaigning for new uniforms, band members met their goal by Thanksgiving. The Scott P.T.A.-sponsored band-uniform fund, started by proceeds of tag days in Scott school district and the downtown business area and candy sales was finally completed by the profits of the fall magazine drive. At the annual Thanksgiving Day football game, the band proudly wore their attractive uniforms — the first new ones in twenty years.

In December the band-on-parade marched through the downtown area with the Old Newsboys' Association to open the charity drive. The precision and rhythm of the performing band provided spirited entertainment during the football half-time periods, pep assemblies, the Thanksgiving assembly, and the Spring Music Festival.

This year the Scott Symphonic Choir, under the direction of Mr. Myron Gerber, gave excellent performances in the memorable Thanksgiving, Christmas, Meditation, and Easter assemblies. In addition to the annual radio broadcast of Christmas music, the choir sang for several business groups and clubs during the holiday season. On March 5, the choir represented Scott in the Northwestern Ohio solo and ensemble competition at Bowling Green. In the spring the Symphonic Choir participated in the Spring Music Festival.

ciation, singing in tune, phrasing, breath control, good diction, proper articulation, and interpretation of songs. In the spring, the Pipers gave performances at the Spring Music Festival and the Easter assembly.

Orchestra Plays Classical and Popular Music

The Scott orchestra is composed of twenty-two students who appreciate good music and enjoy playing it. Since many music students carried a five-subject schedule, the orchestration class was composed of only six students. In spite of this disadvantage, through individual practice and special morning group practices before performances, the orchestra was still able to maintain its excellence in performance for its annual Christmas, Easter, and Honor Society assembly programs. The highlights of the year for the group were the drive to help the band buy new uniforms and the Spring Music Festival.

Fellowship and service to their school and the community were highlights in the sophomore Y-Teen program this year. A Christmas party at the home of the club adviser, Miss Hassfeld, and a splash party and potluck at the Y.W.C.A. provided fellowship and fun. Members served the school by cleaning the trophy cases, a tradition at Scott for each Sophomore Y-Teen group. For community service, at Christmas time the girls made doll ornaments for the Junior Red Cross. To finance their services members of the club held a bake sale after school.

Business Bees Keep Busy

The Business Club lived up to its motto in pursuing a program of successful and interesting activities. Among those the girls enjoyed for funds and pleasure were a November bakesale and splash party. Throughout the year the group invited several representatives from local business and business schools to address the career girls at delightful teas.

As service projects for the school the members constructed individual Christmas greeting-address booklets for the faculty and programs for the Easter assembly.

Red Cross Serves Scott and Community

The Scott Chapter of the American Junior Red Cross participated in many service activities throughout the year. Last fall the group collected 370 pieces of jewelry to be distributed as Christmas presents among the patients at Toledo State Hospital.

Following the school-wide enrollment drive in November, the Red Cross conducted its annual gift-box program for children overseas. Then an inspiring service near the end of the year was the party for the Toledo Society of the Blind.

Students Reflect Scott's Spirit in the Community

For many students, service to Scott doesn't end when the dismissal bell rings at 3 o'clock, but extends into many outside activities. Such delegate students proudly represent Scott by participating in all types of community projects.

These alert Scotters are really goodwill ambassadors to the people of Toledo. Their conduct in the varied programs reflects the high qualities of achievement for which the name of Scott has always been synonymous. Toledoans who meet them and observe their civic participation derive a good impression of our school.

THISTLE Staff Tracks the Facts

If a Scotter wants to know what is happening at Scott, he reads the THISTLE. The THISTLE staff, pledged to keep the student body informed, continued to fulfill this pledge during the year. Reporters with a nose for news gathered stories from every nook and corner of the school. At the periodic BLADE journalism classes, Stan Shulman gathered useful ideas for the THISTLE. With the help of the adviser, Mrs. Conwell, the THISTLE staff employed these ideas to increase sales by publishing articles of greater general interest to Scotters.

Staff members exchange ideas for the next publication of the THISTLE.

Jim Merickel makes final approval of copy before submitting it to editor, Stan Shulman.

1. To keep the student body informed of the truth.
2. To strengthen co-operation among parents, students, and faculty.
3. To promote student interest in Scott — its traditions, its activities, and its ambitions.
4. To serve as a practical workshop in which students gain experience in self-expression.
5. To conform to the standards of good journalism.

SCOTTONIAN Staff Records Student Story

In early September enthusiastic members began work on this 1959-1960 SCOTTONIAN. Editor Arnold Shugarman's summer planning and efficient organization inspired members to achieve early progress on his plan to make the SCOTTONIAN the best ever. Diligently they worked together to meet the over-whelming challenge of producing the annual publication for Scott.

Hectic moments during third hour urged each section to work more strenuously and vigorously to make deadline dates, comprising 146 pages by the end of the first semester. Miss Fields, SCOTTONIAN faculty adviser, helped members to strive with their utmost ability. Her gentle understanding gave many a frustrated member the courage to finish at the last minute. But no members ever gave up. Side by side they worked and worried to record school events in pictures and story.

It is little wonder that excitement charged the air the day in May that the SCOTTONIAN arrived and each staff member found a part of himself in the yearbook. His contribution had now become a part of Scott High School.

Pat Dowell and Judy Engle check deadline copy.

Dave Lyons opens discussion on a club fair.

I. C. C. Forms Key to Purposeful Organizations

A homeroom composed in September of one officer of every Scott club and the Organizations Commission members was called the Inter-Club Council. The purpose of this homeroom organization was to keep each club informed about the ideas and plans of the Organizations Commission.

At the end of the first semester this homeroom was disbanded, and each officer was assigned to his club adviser's homeroom to make it easier for the adviser to obtain information of club plans. To climax the club year, the Inter-club Council with the help of the Organizations Commission planned and completed a very successful club fair in the Scott fieldhouse in late May.

Alchemists Continue Ancient Induction Rites

The Alchemist Society was formed to interest students in the study of the major sciences but has now become an honorary organization composed of those chemistry and physics students who achieve a first semester grade of A or B. The Alchemist officers were president, Arnold Shugarman; vice-president, Richard Penwell; secretary, Mary Pettigrew; treasurer, Paul Milios. In February the induction committee laid plans for the initiation of new members. In service to science, the Alchemists initiated an ambitious program to train laboratory assistants to serve in the science department and to obtain needed equipment for the chemistry and physics classes. Under the supervision of Mr. Bradford, their adviser, they accomplished their goals.

Glass Has Made A Difference

Now is the time to reflect upon the "good ole' days" in school—the many friends, your favorite teachers, sports and dances and parties. But when looking at today's school architecture, we think you'll agree that glass has made a difference!

Here's picture-proof that school corridors don't have to be dark and dreary tunnels. No longer must walls be solid and opaque. Today, more attention is being paid to daylight and view.

When reflecting upon the advantages of this glass age, we think you'll agree that the "good new days" are better.

On a Closing Note

This is your yearbook, moments and memories of Scott 1959-1960. What you see and read is the product of well over 2,900 man hours of classroom work plus many after-school hours spent heroically fighting Old Man Deadline.

A good share of "blood, sweat, and tears" has gone into the production of these two hundred pages. We entered the field of battle in September with few seasoned veterans and many raw recruits. We fought for over six months, endured five major conflicts with deadlines, and emerged victorious on the eve of March 14, when the last pages were sent to Hannibal, Missouri.

The raw recruits are now hardened by the rigors of compiling a SCOTTONIAN. Several of the original seasoned veterans, thoroughly familiar with the many secrets and tricks of the trade, have advanced to the position of sage advisers and are prepared to train next year's crop of yearbook yearlings. Others are battle-worn, shell-shocked seniors who, having stood the test, have added the rank "Retired" to their already illustrious commissions.

Although the SCOTTONIAN staff deserves the highest awards of merit for their action above and beyond the call of duty, we have not won this campaign alone. We have been led with the experience and the excellent, patient guidance of our adviser, Miss Helen Fields. To Mr. Cuthbert Ryan, our art adviser, Mr. John K. Wakelin, our senior photographer, and Mr. Ed Stacklyn, our underclass photographer, go our utmost thanks for their willing assistance. We have appreciated the aid of Mr. Marlen Hoverson, field representative, of the American Yearbook Company, whose advice calmed our many fears of technical errors throughout the campaign. We thank the Springfield High School yearbook staff for the excellent photograph appearing on the athletic division page. The Scott High School administration and faculty has lent its helpful support to our many activities. Finally, we thank you, the 1700 Scott High School students, without whose support the dream of this 1960 SCOTTONIAN would never have been realized.

Sincerely yours,

Arnold Shugarmann
